

YOUR NEXT BIG LEAP!

WORK INTEGRATED LEARNING FOR LEADERSHIP

The World Economic Forum estimates that by 2025, 50% of all employees globally will need to upskill or reskill to stay relevant in the fast-evolving world of work. There are many ways an organisation can help its employees upskill, and prioritising that will stimulate growth, both for the organisation as well as the individual.

Research has also found that upskilling existing employees has proven to be more cost-effective than hiring new talent. Studies have shown that organisations can save up to 70–90% on their expenses if they choose to invest in training their existing pool of resources instead of replacing them with new hires. By filling in knowledge gaps, employers not only stand to gain employees' confidence and trust but also enhance productivity and ensure alignment with the overall business goals. This can help create a more dynamic work culture and attract the best talent to the organisation.

This is where Work Integrated Learning for Leadership (WILL) steps in. Our specially crafted programs will not only ensure that you retain your top talent but also help catalyse change, improve productivity, and drive growth within your company. National and international conglomerates like Microsoft, GE, Accenture, Deloitte, Larsen & Toubro, Aditya Birla Group, Godrej, and many others have profited through our programs.

WILL is an initiative of Global University Systems (GUS), a network of higher education institutions operating in countries like the United Kingdom, Germany, Canada, Ireland, Israel, and Singapore, with over 60,000 students. WILL offers executive programs in collaboration with academic partners such as UPES, Edology, Edvancer, EDGE Metaversity, & Jolt, and leading organizations like KPMG, IBM, & IIT-Kanpur's E&ICT Academy.

WILL ADVANTAGES

Work Integrated Learning for Leadership (WILL) offers executive education solutions that are based on a comprehensive approach to the learning and development needs of organisations grappling with the challenges of an ever-changing technological landscape, market disruptions, and a fickle economy.

WILL offers bespoke upskilling for every stage of the employee cycle, which not only helps employees stay engaged and motivated in their roles but also gives them the chance to broaden and deepen their skills and knowledge throughout their career, ensuring that they remain competent and relevant in an increasingly volatile and uncertain world.

WILL has been catering to organisations in a range of industries, including Data Science, Finance, Business Analytics, Power, Oil & Gas, and more.

WILL facilitators include industry veterans and domain experts from the corporate sector, as well as eminent academicians from leading universities and educational institutions. The learning models used are hybrid, which include synchronous and asynchronous instruction via online and in-person modes.
